MERGER CASE

lations of the law cannot be excused un der the plea of charter privileges. This was clearly ruled in the case of State vs. Standard Oil Company, (49 Ohio State, 137.)

IS UNTHINKABLE.

"But whatever the powers of the State of New Jersey may be as against the lays of Minnesota, Montana, Idaho, North Dakota and Washington, and for tunately this difficulty of conflicting State powers need not be decided h this case, it is obvious that they are powerless when invoked against the Constitution of the United States. It provides for its own supremacy and the laws made thereunder, and among these powers, as to which it is supreme, is the power to regulate interstate commerce, and under this power, as was decided in the Joint Traffic and Trans-Missouri cases, the Federal anti-trust law has been duly enacted. It is the supremo law of the land, the laws of New Jersey to the contrary notwithstanding. Any other view would make the State, through its power to create corporations with in-definite powers, superior to the Federal government and supreme in matters of legislation. The proposition is unthink-

Defendants Contend, however, that the mere ownership of shares by the New Jersey corporation has no direct or im-mediate relation to interstate commerce, mediate relation to interstate commerce, and is, therefore, not within the scope of the Federal power. Even if this corporation were only a holding corporation, I could not concede the contention.

"In the last analyses the stockholders clearly operate the road. Theirs is the 'ultimate control.' 'Qui facit per allum facit per se' is an old maxim of the law and approved common sense.

The stockholders who, at an annual meeting, determine the policy of the road, are as much engaged in commerce as the locomotive engineer who, under us the locomotive engineer who, under their direction and as their servant, propels a train from St. Paul to Sentile. Indeed, the act of the engineer is the act of the owners, and such ownership not merely relates to but is interstate commerce.

BENEVOLENCE OF MONOPOLY,

"The defendants further contend that, though the merger does restrict interstate commerce, it accomplishes vaster purposes in the development of traffic. This is the familiar argument of the beneficence of monopoly, it should be addressed to Congress, and not to the contra rourts.

"If the merger is so beneficial, the emphatic protest of the executive officers of five States would seem to be unnecessary. However, these questions are all for the Legislature and not the judicial essary. However, these questions are all for the Legislature and not the judicial branch of the government.

"The American people are both conservative and practical, and when they recognize that monopoly is beneficent and competition is an evil, they will repeal existing laws and by positive legislation facilitate and legalize railway monopoly. Until that time, which is likely to be the Greek kalends, the law should be fairly, fully, and impartially enforced, for it is everlastingly true that the imperative need of this country, both at the hands of capital and labor, is not more law, but more obedience to law. However public spirited the purposes of the defendants in forming this merger may have been, and whatever its resultant good or evil, it is enough for present purposes to say that it clearly violates existing law, whose provisions must be enforced unless government by the people is to be deemed a delusion."

"Lovellest of lovely things are they On earth that soonest pass away; The rose that lives its little hour Is prized above the sculptured flower."

The shadowy messenger has left hope and consolation to the breaved husband, father, mother, sisters and brothers in the fact that Bessie was always so good, so patient and so uncomplaining.

SENATE TO VOTE TO-DAY

Six Hours' Debate on Cuban Treaty.

MONEY ON RACE QUESTION

Says Roosevelt is Not an American President, but President of the Black Bell -- Senators Anxious to Get Away.

(By Associated Press.)
WASHINGTON, D. C., March 18.—Bo fore adjourning at 7 o'clock to-night the Senate entered into a unanimous agreement to vote on the Cuban reciprocity treaty at 3 o'clock to-morrow. The hope of securing a vote to-day was dissipated by the discovery that there were more speeches to be made in opposition to the treaty than had been counted upon. Indeed, it was difficult to secure an agreement to vote even to-morrow, and it was evident that this result could not have been accomplished but for the anxiety of Senators to secure a final adjournment

The executive session covered six hour and was devoted largely to adverse criticisms of the treaty. During the day Sen ator Newlands made a plea for the auator Newlands made a plea for the annexation of Cuba, and presented an amendment to the treaty tendering an invitation to that island to become a State of the American Union.

The debate was participated in by Senators McEnery, Newlands, Spooner, Teller, Nelson, Cullom, Gorman, Balley and Carmack.

The Senate spent the first half hour of the executive session in discussing the propriety of prinking all the speeches made upon the Panama Canal since the official reporters were admitted to the chamber last Monday. The unanimous agreement to print included only Senator Morgan's speeches and Senator Cullom's closing remarks, but none of the others. The discussion of the question made it quite clear that comparalively little, if any, of the running debate will be printed. When the Cuban treaty was laid before the Senate Senator McEnery took the floor and made a speech of something more than two hours' longith in opposition to it. He contended that the treaty is in the interest of the sugar trust, and said that its ratification would be a direct blow to the singar interests of the United States, The present tailff, Mr. McEnery said, greatly stimulated the sugar industry of this country, and he predicted that if it should be permitted to continue in force the time would come when the United States would not only produce sufficient sugar to supply its own wants, but that it would export the American The Senate spent the first half hour of sufficient sugar to supply its own wants but that it would export the American

Speaking of the effect upon his own State of Louisiana, Mr. McEnery said that practically the entire population would be affected by the approval of the ADVOCATED ANNEXATION

When Senator McEnery concluded, Senator Newlands took the floor. His speech ator Newlands' took the floor. His speech was notable, not only because it was his malden speech in the Senate, but because he appeared as an open advocate of the annexation of Cuba to the United States, and also as an opponent of the treaty. As a part of his address on the point of annexation," he presented the following amendment:

"The Republic of the United States, recognizing the ultimate relationship be-

In support of this amendment, Mr. Newlands said that the Democratic party should stand for traditional expansion of the republic by promoting the voluntary annexation of Cuba through the free expression of her people, and it should emphasize this position at this time by resolutions to that effect. We should, he declared, give Cuba clearly and unequivocally to understand that if she wishes commercial union with SPOONER REPLIED.

Senator Spooner replied briefly to Senator Spooner replied briefly to Senator Nowlands and sharply criticised his policy of annexation. He said that under the Teller resolution the political independence of the Cubans had been guaranpennence of the control of the contr other result.

Senator Newlands challenged several of Mr. Spooner's statements, and the two engaged for a time in a spirited controversy. In this Senators Teller and Netson participated, both attacking the treaty, and the latter replying pointedly to Mr. Spooner.

Senator Cullam made an effort to secure an agreement to fix a time for a vote. Senator Gorman said that he had no objection, but Senators Carmack and Bailey both declared that they were then unprepared to name an hour for taking a ballot on the treaty. They subsequently withdrew their objections and the hour of 3 o'clock was named as the time for voting upon the treaty and amendments. In the course of a speech explaining his objection to fixing a time for taking a vote. Senator Bailey criticised the treaty from a constitutional point of view, saying that a provision for the concurrence of the House was not sufficient, as it was a requisite that in all matters pertaining to the revenue the House should lake the initiative.

During the day Senator Nelson offered an amendment placing flour imported into Cuba in the forty per cent reduction schedule of the treaty, providing against any reduction on American tobacco imported into Cuba.

The Senate adjourned until te-morrow. o Mr. Spooner. Senator Cullam made an effort to secure

WASHINGTON, D. C., March 18 .--

WASHINGTON D. C., March 18.—Judge Gray, chairman, and Carroll D. Wright, recorder, of the Anthracte Coal Strike Commission, called on the President today and presented to him the report of the commission. It is a voluminous document, covering fully all phases of the controversy between the operators and the miners. Bothisides have promised to abide by the decisions of the tribunal created by President Rossevelt.

Details of the report will be awaited with great interest, not only by the operators and miners, but also by the people of the country generally.

At the conclusion of the interview with the President, Colonel Wright announced that the report would be made public at his office on Saturday morning. About the same time, it will be placed in the hands of the representatives of the operators and the miners, the parties directly in interest.

President Rossevelt entertained the erators and the miners, the parties directly in interest.

Prosident Roosevelt entertained the members of the Anthracite Coal Strike Commission and its attaches at dinner at the White House to-night. The party included Judge George Gray, the chairman; Thomas S. Watkins, E. E. Clark, General Wilson, G. Parker, Bishop Spalding, Carroll D. Wright, E. A. Mosely and Dr. Neill.

Secretary Cortelyou, of the Department of Commerce and Labor, also was one of the guests. Twice Senator Depew was rushed from
